GDPR QuickStart Assessment rapidly frames your GDPR needs by outlining and prioritising the steps towards compliance, or by using industry expertise to validate your existing approach.

For many organisations the new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) will require material change across a number of functions: legal; compliance; IT solution architecture and design; third party supplier management; and security operations to name a few. Untangling the legislation and how it impacts your business can be challenging but with the deadline looming ever closer, businesses need to put plans in motion now.

Our QuickStart Assessment provides the first steps towards becoming GDPR compliant. GDPR QuickStart provides a framework that combines our GDPR know-how with your in-depth business knowledge to rapidly frame your GDPR needs, and to prioritise the activities you need to undertake to become compliant. Don't worry if you've already started work on the GDPR, QuickStart can also be used to validate your existing approach and plans.

How does it work?

Our GDPR experts will run workshops and interviews with key stakeholders and senior executives within your organisation to assess the impact of the GDPR. The workshops will look at the requirements of the regulation and the ability of your existing people, processes and tools to meet those requirements. Where gaps are identified, potential solutions to address or mitigate them will be proposed. To ensure the analysis and corresponding solutions are holistic, the impact of the GDPR is viewed from three different perspectives: Executive, Operational and Business Services.

What's in the report?

Following the workshops, data is collated and analysed to produce a final report which includes:

- A GDPR Scorecard
- Initial inventory of business services and applications impacted by the GDPR
- Description of significant capability gaps and their potential impact on the business
- Key recommendations and priorities for becoming compliant
- If appropriate, a proposal for a GDPR "Road to Green" engagement to develop a complete plan for compliance
